New Production Site in Indonesia

Diamet Corporation (President: Iino, Yoshiyasu, Capital: 1.5 Billion Japanese Yen) will establish a new production site in Indonesia, close to Jakarta city. Diamet group has been growing through our production site in Japan and Malaysia. However, since the spread of eco-friendly automobiles has increased the global demand of our sintered parts, we have decided to establish production site in China last year, and we have considered further expansion of our business to abroad, especially in developing countries such as Indonesia. As a concrete plan, to meet increasing local demand of automotive mechanical parts and oilless bearings at Indonesia, we have decided to produce and supply sintered parts from April 2014 in Indonesia.

In order to cope with customers' requirements speedily, we will rather establish new division under PT. MMC Metal Fabrication which has 14 years of operational experience in Indonesia and is 100% subsidiary of Mitsubishi Materials Corporation.

Overview is as below

Production Site Overview

- (1) Location: MM2100 Industrial Town, Bekasi, West Jawa, Indonesia
- (2) Production and Sales Start-up: April 2014
- (3) Business: Production and Sales of Sintered Parts
- (4) Number of Employees: Approx. 140 as on April 2014

*Sintered part is produced by powder metallurgy method, in which metal powder is compacted by high pressure press and sintered by furnace. Powder metallurgy method is the production method that enables mass production of parts with complicated shape widely used in industries such as automotive , electrical appliance and so on.
